$$\text{RpW ratio} = \frac{\text{total runs scored}}{\text{total wickets lost}} \div \frac{\text{total runs conceded}}{\text{total wickets taken}}.$$

In other words, "The batting average for a team shall be obtained by dividing the total number of runs scored by the total number of wickets lost. The batting average against the team shall be obtained by dividing the total number of runs scored against it by total number of wickets taken, the former shall be divided by the later to obtain the quotient. The team having the higher quotient shall be placed above the teams having lower quotient.

If the average is the same after going through the aforesaid process, then the top three, out of the second-best team(s) from all the groups in the League stage, shall be determined by "Draw of lots" to be arranged by the Hony.
